Hitachi joins “The Valuable 500,” an International Initiative to Promote Disability Inclusion

Tokyo, March 8, 2021 – Hitachi, Ltd. (TSE: 6501, “Hitachi”) today announced that it has joined “The Valuable 500,” an international movement to promote active participation by persons with disabilities.

“The Valuable 500” was kicked off at the annual meeting of the World Economic Forum (Davos) in January 2019. The goal of the initiative is to achieve an inclusive society by having business leaders promote the inclusion of disabled persons in business activities.

Hitachi has positioned the promotion of diversity and inclusion as part of its management strategies. It considers differences in gender, nationality, ethnicity, religion, background, age, disability, and sexual orientation to be part of a person’s individuality, and respects that individuality. By applying those differences to strengthen the organization, Hitachi ties this into the continued growth of both individuals and the organizations of which they are part.

Up to now, as part of efforts to promote the employment of persons with disabilities, in collaboration with Group companies, Hitachi has undertaken activities aimed at meeting the needs of disabled persons seeking employment opportunities; for example, in addition to recruiting activities conducted through special education institutions and other schools and agencies that support the disabled, Hitachi accepts applications for internships and on-the-job training. Hitachi has also expanded employment for the disabled by using Japan’s “Special Subsidiary Company” system to build more accessible workplace environments, and by providing employment opportunities where each individual can fully demonstrate their own abilities in keeping with their unique circumstances.

Now, by joining “The Valuable 500,” Hitachi will further promote diversity and inclusion, including full participation by persons with disabilities.

Hitachi's commitment to inclusion for disabled persons

In keeping with its new standing as a member of "The Valuable 500," Hitachi has declared its commitment to the following ideals:
